

Lady Astor Warmly Greeted On Journey

Lady Nancy Langhorne Astor, first woman to be elected to the British House of Commons, accompanied by her husband, Lord Waldorf Astor, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson and W. H. Langhorne, arrived "home" shortly before 10 o'clock last night. They came from Richmond and were given a spontaneous welcome by the people of Danville who turned out in large numbers to give the party its first greeting. They were taken at once to the Burton Hotel. Lady Astor, despite the fatigue she must have felt after the arduous programme during her visit to Richmond, was game to the last.

With half a dozen speeches to her credit at wayside stations, she responded to the call of a T. P. A. delegate in the hotel lobby who clamored for a speech. She said "traveling men are like politicians, they are always trying to get someone to do something he does not want to do." She said that she was getting weaker on speeches and that she was tired, whereupon she bid the crowd good night.

Lady Astor party's journey from Richmond to Danville was one succession of triumphs. At every stop

SECRET OF A GOOD DISPOSITION

A woman who carefully safeguards her health benefits her disposition. She will be happy and attractive to all. The world unfortunately is filled with sweet women who are unhappy because they are held back from usefulness by troubles so common among them. Fretfulness and nervousness rapidly destroy good dispositions. Sickly, worn-out women cannot make happy homes.

MOTHER FAILS UNCONSCIOUS

"My mother, who is 69 years old, has been troubled with her liver for 35 years. Doctors said she had gall stones. Several times she fell unconscious because of these attacks. Eight months ago I noticed an advertisement of May's Wonderful Remedy in the Toledo Blade and purchased a bottle which did her a great amount of good. She continued the treatment and she felt entirely well since." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. C. McFall's Drug Store, Trent Drug Co. and druggists everywhere—adv.

IS GUEST OF CITY TODAY

LADY NANCY ASTOR

festation if interest by Lady Astor's native city.

At this juncture Lady Astor invited the trio into the drawing room. The small compartment was literally a bower of flowers. Some of them were the rich blossoms of the florist, but many of them were nosegays of simple Virginia flowers, attached to which were many hearty messages, all of them expressive of a real affection which Virginia feels for her renowned daughter. Lady Astor was engaged in penciling an outline of thoughts to be expressed during her visit.

She at once plunged into the plans for the day. Before her she had a copy of the evening paper which she was scanning closely. She showed an immediate interest in the announcement that during the forthcoming convention of Social Workers in Danville stress will be laid on the duty which every community owes itself by meeting its own social problems. Instead of allowing the State to do it. This is one of her doctrines and one of the messages she is bringing. The subject may find a place in the course of her remarks today. Both Lady Astor and her sister, Mrs. Gibson, showed growing excitement as the train cut down the miles between them and Danville. They did not attempt to disguise this feeling and both frankly admitted that they were looking forward to the visit more perhaps than any other because it meant "home" and the renewal of old ties.

While it is true that Lady Astor left Danville when she was two years old and Mrs. Gibson when she was seven, they still consider themselves Danville folk. First one and then another name of local citizens were recalled with eagerness and Lady Astor spoke feelingly of "Cottage Hill" the home of her grandfather, Col. Elisha Keen, who served several terms with distinction in the Senate and in the House, this historical data being on the tip of Lady Astor's tongue showing a keen knowledge of Virginia history and the records of her forbears. "My recollection," Lady Astor said, "is impressed indelibly on my mind through my mother. I was essentially a 'mother's child.' She spoke so often about Danville, of its people and of some of the events in its history that they are that impressive which years of time cannot erase." Continuing, she recalled one incident during a stay at Cottage Hill, a revisit to which place she looks upon today as a sort of reverent pilgrimage which she remembers to this day. It is the flooding of the nearby creek, "Sandy Creek" queried the reporter. She jumped at the word as though it gave new color to the memory of that event of childhood.

The conversation continued as the miles were unrolled. Lord Astor was reclining and jotting down some notes and frequently interpolated suggestions for the speeches of today. Lady Astor discussed most seriously the subject of her talk today, which was made plain that her principal talk will be at the open air meeting at Broad and Main streets. The Council Chamber address will be a spontaneous expression from her heart of the action of the city of Danville in inviting her. She appeared above all anxious to give the people of Danville what they would most like to hear, explaining that she had spoken so often of women and their sphere of activities that she felt she had exhausted herself on this subject. Incidentally Lord Astor is striving to limit Lady Astor to one set speech a day. She has been making from two to three a day and as a devoted husband is solicited about her health, although many who heard her during the run from Richmond last night were amazed at the power of her voice and the exertion she placed in her public utterance. She appeared to be devoid of personal ambition and radiated that atmosphere of personality which has been so often commented upon.

During the trip Lady Astor was the recipient of numerous gifts not only of flowers but of other objects. Mrs. Johnson of South Boston, sent her a hand-embroidered handkerchief in an envelope. Another incident and one which touched Lady Astor deeply took place at Clover when an aged woman handed to Lady Astor a nosegay of Virginia flowers to which was attached a note "I wish you would just look at this" as she handed the reporter the letter. It was indeed an affecting message. Twenty-six years ago Lady Astor had visited the Shelburne Arms hospital at Richmond and had given to the woman a bouquet of flowers. Yesterday at Clover the frail figure was there—Mrs. Jessie Messick—and she repaid that long standing debt by presenting Lady Astor with a bouquet on the occasion of the Virginia woman's triumphant journey towards the scene of her birth.

Lady Astor showed how intensely human she is last night when a slight contretemps occurred which really vexed her. The train checked up as it was passing through Sutherland. Lady Astor was preparing her effects for the descent at Danville and did not realize that the train was passing through a community. Lord Astor called her quickly and she ran lightly to the rear platform just as the train passed the station. A large crowd could be seen standing by a big bonfire and burning railroad ties. They were cheering madly and the cry "Astor" sounded above the rattle of the coach. Lady Astor placed her hands to her mouth and with every atom of

CECIL B. DE MILLE, FAMOUS PRODUCER OF "SATURDAY NIGHT" MAY OPEN UP SHOP

Cecil B. De Mille may open a smart specialty shop for women! The famous motion picture producer has no intention of abandoning the screen, however. He will continue to produce Paramount pictures whatever decision is reached on the subject of the proposed shop.

Feminine fashions in De Mille productions have attracted wide attention all over the world for several years. Cecil B. De Mille has received numberless letters from professional dressmakers and from women of fashion throughout the country begging him to turn over to them the designs of the gowns and other articles of feminine apparel used in his productions.

These requests in the past have met with a courteous refusal. Recently, however, the manager of a chain of great hotels approached the producer with the suggestion that Mr. De Mille open a shop or series of shops in these hotels in which might be sold the various articles used in De Mille pictures.

This request followed a visit of the hotel manager to the Lasky studios during the filming of "Saturday Night," the latest Cecil B. De Mille production, coming to the Broadway theatre next Monday and in which Claire West, the De Mille fashion designer is said to surpass all her previous efforts for sheer beauty and ultra-fashionable good taste.

Edith Roberts, Leatrice Joy, Julia Faye, Edythe Chapman and Sylvia Ashton are the feminine principals in this story of Jeanie Macpherson's Conrad Nagel, Jack Mower, James Neill and John Davidson are the principal masculine players.

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1922.

WELCOME HOME.

Danville today enjoys a distinction which no other city in the country can enjoy. It is that of greeting a homecoming "unreconstructed Southerner."

Nancy Langhorne of Virginia—a Virginia noblewoman, a benefactress to the women of the world, and a woman who shattered precedent in a conservative country not given to swift basic changes by being elected to the House of Commons at Westminster.

The community today greets her with that glowing pride that affirms mother experiences over the success in mundane affairs of a daughter. Many of us may not have known Nancy Langhorne until today but that does not rob the greeting of any of its spontaneous warmth and Danville rejoices in bestowing an honor upon whom it may worthily be placed. It is a far cry from the age of tottling to the age of prime. That is the span of time which has elapsed since Nancy Langhorne left Danville and set forth on a life marked at every stage by triumphs, until the crowning point was reached by her establishment in the political world, a pioneer among women in the new recognition of the sex. Yet Nancy Astar still feels at heart that she is a Virginian and she has proclaimed this fact proudly ever since she landed in this country. Today, therefore, her home town, the place she subconsciously calls "home," takes her to itself for the individual celebration which no other place in the world can give her and greets affectionately the daughter which Virginia has given to her own old mother.

DRAKES BRANCH, May 4.—(Grapevine Wireless.) We just had to have a dash of English weather to achieve the home atmosphere for our guests and start the day auspiciously. At the hour of going to press this afternoon the program moved smoothly and everything points to a glorious day for Danville. A day long to be remembered in which the community spirit was handsomely manifested on every side. It is mighty hard for the T. P. A. brethren to get down to business with so much in the air, but they are on the job and will carry through their program. The traveling men are strong for Danville and are not surprised at the big doings around the town today, they may be eclipsed temporarily, but they will have a big time just the same. Since Lady Astar has the key to the city we hope she will carry it away so the mayor can't lock things up so tight anymore, for a long, long time. "Now, ain't we got fun!"

When the train came in last night Mayor Wooding kissed Irene, then turned to Nancy in further pleasant anticipation, but she turned him down smiling and said, "I trust no man with whiskers."

Some Kick.

A fashionably dressed lady, accompanied by her little dog, was doing some shopping in one of the large Nikes and Dime Stores. Meeting a floorwalker, she asked if he would mind her dog while she made some large and expensive purchases. He good naturedly agreed to do so. A few minutes later she saw the floorwalker make a furious kick at the dog and coming over assured him that her little pet dog would never bite him.

"Perhaps he won't bite, lady, but he had his leg up to kick me."

IT TOOK FIVE AND TWO-THIRDS STRETCHES OF A THREE-FOOT TAPE TO GET THE MEASUREMENT OF HANS LANGSETH'S 17-FOOT BEARD.

WAS THE TIME WHEN HANS LANGSETH USED TO LET FOLKS USE HIS BEARD IN TUG-OF-WAR PULLS. NOT ANY MORE, THOUGH. IT HURTS HIS NECK.

EVER HEAR OF FENCE-POSTS BEING JUST ONE BEARD LENGTH FROM THE NEXT ONE? THAT'S HOW HANS LANGSETH HAS 'EM SET ON HIS FARM. HIS BEARD IS JUST SIX INCHES LONGER THAN A ROD.

BOY: Page Hans N. Langseth, of when he decided to "let 'er flow."

It is the custom at Eidsvold, as Langseth explains, for men to permit their whiskers to grow during the winter months and shave them off each spring.

He did this up until he reached 29 years of age.

Then, emboldened by the astonishing luxuriance of his growth, he decided, to let the chest protector sprout.

"Just wanted to see how long it would grow," says he.

And it has sprouted an average rate of 4-1/2 inches a year ever since.

The extreme end of the whiskers, which, years ago, nestled close to the chin, still form a mat of Viking red.

His color when the beard first reached the United States in 1876.

Gradually the color fades and the upper section is snow white.

Langseth takes an active interest in his farm near Barney. When he is not using his beard to measure the distance between fence posts (just about a rod, you know) he keeps it tucked beneath his vest.

And when it is thus hidden, you'd hardly think he had a short crop of curly whiskers. For, in truth, he has a double growth.

While the main champion strands run to the full 17 feet, a shorter crop still bushes out in the arduous beard.

Friends enjoy the sight when Langseth washes out his famous growth. He uses a curtain stretcher.

And take it from Hans, it's considerable job to coax a comb through 17 feet of hair.

"When I was younger," says Langseth, "I used to let folks pull my beard in the tug of war style. Not any more, though. It hurts my neck."

And so, a beard that started out in the days of '47, will be on hand to help Californians celebrate the "Days of '49."

SISTER OF BRUNEN GIVES MURDER CLUE

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., May 3.—A movie for the murder of John Brunen was supplied here today when the sister of the murdered man, Mrs. Elizabeth Jaeschke, sister of the murdered man, had obtained information in Chicago at County Detective Parker's request showing Harry Mohr, accused of the crime, had quarreled with Brunen.

A telegram sent by Brunen to Mohr Feb. 22, two weeks before the murder, while the latter was at Chicago at a convention of fair circus representatives, was read in full. This communication, evidently provoked by a letter Mohr had sent, read as follows:

"Harry C. Mohr, Sherman Hotel, Chicago, Feb. 11: Replying to letter, I will never take orders from any one but the law. Will take advice of all sane men at all times. You imagine you are a big agent and have never booked a town. My wife was advised, as your letter proves. I know situation. If you want to quit, all right. Never dictate to me. Men who have been a success cannot be slighted. Advise by wire."

It was signed "John."

Mohr had gone to Chicago to solicit bookings for "The Highty Doria Show" at the convention. He had not made any.

Mrs. Jaeschke arrived in Mount Holly early this morning from Philadelphia with the wife of the man accused of plotting Brunen's murder and the murdered man's sister.

Mohr visited her husband in the county jail. "He has changed in appearance," she told reporters.

She was anxious about the sanitary conditions of the prison and later had a new mattress for her husband's bed. She had his clothes pressed, bought clean collars and shirts, and ordered that he be shaved.

"Harry is innocent," she declared.

Mrs. Jaeschke was vituperative in her declarations against Mohr. "He's a crook," she declared, "and his electric chair. They ought to be sent to the electric chair. They offered me $200 to go home. They conspired to kill my brother."

"I tell you I heard someone," she declared, "only to suddenly veer and flatten himself against the wall. The yellow blaze of aimless revolver fire had spurted from the corner, the plugging form of a snarled, gangling, limping man, who rushed past Houston to the door, averted there, and once more raised the revolver. But he did not fire."

A furry, snarling thing had leaped at him, knocking the revolver from his hand in its plunging ascent. Then a cry—a gurgling growl. Teeth had clenched at the throat of the man; together they rushed through the door to the snow without. Golemar, his hold broken by the fall, striving again for the death clutch, the man screaming in sudden frantic fear.

Take him off—I'll tell you about it—she did it—she did it! Take him off!

The White Desert

The whistles screamed. Up the grade, four engines to a plow, the jets of steam swirling upward, coughing columns of smoke leaping blackly up the mountain side.

A jarring crash that all but threw the men of the first crew from their feet, and the Death Trail had been met. Then churning, snarling, roaring, the snow flying in cloud-like masses past them, the first plow bit its way deep into the tremendous snow, while sweating men, Barry Houston among them, crammed coal into the open, angry fire boxes, and sand streamed on greasy tracks—and the cavalcade went on.

A hundred yards—the beams knocking down the snow above and all but covering the negines which forced their way through.

A shout. A pull at the whistle, screaming forth its note of victory. Then the blar of the whistles was drowned in a greater sound, a roar that reverberated through the hills like the bellow of a thousand thunderers, the cracking and crashing of rocks, the splintering of great rocks as the snows of the granite spires above the Death Trail loosed at last and crashed downward in an all-consuming rush of destruction. These great masses of white, and in the distance, the splintering of great rocks as the snows of the granite spires above the Death Trail loosed at last and crashed downward in an all-consuming rush of destruction.

At the men shouted, and screamed, and at one another in their happiness in the fact that the fact that he had been torn away from behind them as though it never had existed, and that they now were off entirely from the rest of the world. Only one snowshed remained, with but a feeble bulwark of drifts before it.

Light faded. Dawn came and then the sun! Clear and brilliant with the promise of spring again and of melting snows. The fight was over. Morning of the second day—and again the sunshine.

Tabernacle was in the distance, while men and women waded through the soggy snows to be the first to reach the train. Eagerly Barry Houston searched the thronging crowd, to catch sight of a gigantic figure, his wolf-dog beside him.

"Ba'tiste!" he called. "Ba'tiste!" Great arms opened wide. A sob came from the throat of a giant.

Mon Ernest Mon Ernest! It was all he could say for a moment.

"We've won, Ba'tiste! The line's open—they'll be running trains through before night. And if she keeps her promise—"

"She?" Ba'tiste stared down at him. They had drawn away from the rest of the excited, noisy throng.

"She? You mean—"

"Agnes. You've been taking care of her, haven't you? I found her, she promised that she would tell the truth for me when I got back, that she would explain the lease and contract and tell Medaine that it was all a lie. She—"

But Ba'tiste Renaud shook his head.

"No, Ba'tiste. Et is the too late. I have just come—from there. I have close her eyes."

CHAPTER XX

DEAD! Houston saw Medaine Robinnette pass in the distance, and his eyes followed her until she had rounded the curve by the dead aspens—the eyes of lost hope.

"Without a word," it spelled blackness for Houston. "I—I—suppose you've taken charge of everything."

"Oui! But I have look at nothing."

"I just had something here," Houston furnished in his pockets. "She would have said—"

But a sudden glare in Ba'tiste's eyes stopped him as he brought forth the crucifix and his tangled chain. The giant's hands raised. His big lips twisted. A lunge and he had come forward, savage, almost beast-like.

"You!" he bellowed. "Where you get that? Hear me, where you get that?"

"From her, She—"

"Then come! Come—quick with me! He almost dragged the younger man away, hurrying him toward the sled and its broad-backed old horses.

"We must go to the cabin, out—yes! Hurry—Houston saw that the trinkets trembled. "Get the thing I look for—the thing I look for!"

"Ba'tiste! What do you mean?"

"My Juliette," came hoarsely. "Set is my Juliette!"

Already they were in the sled, the wolf-dog nestled between them, and hurrying along the mushy road, two miles they went, the horses urged to their greatest speed.

At last came the little clearing—and the cabin. Ba'tiste already was within.

Houston entered and dropped beside the older man, already dragging forth the drawers of the bureau and pawing excitedly among the trinkets there. A watch, a ring, and a locket, with a curly strand

Coconut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisilf coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can get for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls of Multisilf will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisilf coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and few a ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Multisilf.—adv.

Woman And Jury Weep At Dramatic Appeal For Veith

Spectators Grow Hysterical and Faint As Sayer Is Pictured As Mother's Avenger.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Sentiment had its day in court yesterday at the trial, before Judge Mancuso and a jury in general sessions, of Carl Veith, charged with murder in the first degree for shooting and killing William Doyle after Doyle, whom he had long befriended, had beaten and robbed Veith's aged mother.

One woman fainted. Another was led weeping hysterically from the court room and among the twelve more women who remained there could be found no one unflinched by tears. At least two of the twelve jurors, sworn to let sympathy play no part in the verdict which may take Veith's life or restore his liberty, removed their eyeglasses and with their handkerchiefs wiped their eyes.

This display of emotion occurred during the summing up by James A. Turley, Veith's attorney. More than once his voice broke as he drew, word by word, the picture of the devoted son who, finding the frail little mother who was his "only girl" bruised and blackened by the blows of a man he had tried to help, went mad for the moment or the hour of the day and sought out and killed the man who had thus requited his friendship.

Turley urged, "Is there a man among you who would not have avenged such an attack upon his mother? Veith was irrational, yes—temporarily insane. Was not the provocation sufficient to produce such a condition? Was not the sight of the bruised and bleeding mother enough to drive any sane man mad?"

Reading from the record of Veith's statement to the district attorney's representative just after his arrest on the night of the killing, April 8, Mr. Turley stressed Veith's answers showing his devotion to his mother and those which indicated his state of mind at the time he shot Doyle. In these answers Veith told of finding his mother in a semi-conscious condition and said he could barely understand her as she mumbled that Doyle had beaten her "about money." This money was Veith's $25 wages which Doyle had seen him give his mother for the rent. Describing his meeting with Doyle later, Veith said:

"When I saw him I lost my mind, all told, and went blind completely. I heard no shots. I don't know how many times I fired."

Assistant District Attorney Brothers, summing up for the prosecution, told the jury Veith was a cold-blooded murderer whose only defense was "the enunciation of his attorney and the fact that he had a mother." He reminded the jurors of their oath not to permit sympathy to sway their decision.

Veith's proper remedy, he said, was to call a policeman. Punching a woman in the eye, he added, was not so serious a crime as taking a man's life.

Madeleine Mullen, eight years old, Veith's niece, testified she saw Doyle enter her grandmother's room and later saw her grandmother bruised and hysterical. Misses Josephine and May McKenna and Florence Frazier, tenants in the building in which the Veiths live at No. 631 Wythe avenue, Brooklyn, said they saw Veith sitting on a couch by his injured mother, sobbing while the mother said:

"Doyle will be back to kill me if I don't give him the money."

Judge Mancuso will charge the jury this morning and a verdict before night is probable.

Denies McCormick Plans to Marry Noted Singer

CHICAGO, May 4.—Howard Colby, friend of the McCormick family, declared tonight that a report that Harold F. He said Mr. McCormick may have a statement to make when he reaches Chicago tomorrow.

PSYCHIC WONDER EMPLOYS "AD." TO FIND HER OWN LOST WATCH

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4.—It is said doctors seldom can cure themselves, neither can psychics, it appears, find their own lost articles.

When Eugene Dennis, the Atchison girl, whose reputed ability to locate missing persons and things has made her nationally known, lost her wrist watch here the other day, she promptly put an advertisement in the paper instead of relying upon her psychic powers to find it. The next morning a woman called her by telephone at her hotel, described a watch she had found, returned it and got the reward.

FLYING BOAT BEARING ILL WOMAN MAKES RECORD TRIP

NORFOLK, May 4.—An F-5-L navy flying boat, made a new record on a trip from Hatteras, N. C., to Norfolk, with a woman critically ill with diphtheria, and several of her relatives aboard. The patient was Mrs. Carrie Meggett. She had a comfortable trip, the plane riding smoothly, easily, without a jar. At St. Vincent's hospital she is now reported as resting easily.

Episcopal Bishop Holds Time To Combat Prohibition Has Come

BOSTON, May 4.—Bishop William Lawrence, of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, in his annual report to the diocesan convention today asked whether it was not time to recognize the right of every citizen to do as he pleased in his private life, and to believe in constitutional prohibition to say so, and in public.

"Hundreds of thousands of workmen who found solace and comradeship after the day's work in what they felt to be their innocent glass of beer had it snatched from them," the bishop said, "and thousands upon thousands of reputable citizens found their personal liberties and domestic habits broken in upon."

"Surely it is competent for every citizen to speak, work and do everything consistent with the law to have the law either amended or rescinded."

General Fu Now Control Peking

Hostilities in China Believed Ended With Collapse of Gen. Chang Tsao-Lui's Forces, Who Flee in Disorder.

(By the Associated Press.)
PEKING, May 5.—General Wu Pei-fu is in control of Peking, and General Chang Tsao-Lui, routed yesterday in a fierce battle south of the capital, is reported fleeing in disorder to Mukden. Observers believe that Chang's sudden collapse has ended the hostilities.

PROMINENT FIGURES IN CHINESE WAR

Out of the confusion which has reigned in China since the overthrow of the empire three great figures now emerge to contest for supreme control of the great country.

Chang Tsao-Lui and Wu Pei-fu, who are fighting near Peking, arose together. They were commanders of armies in Manchuria and Chihli province in the summer of 1929, when Marshal Tuan made a prisoner of President Hsu and began to remove all military commanders opposed to his plan for restoring the monarchy. Tuan was supported by the powerful Anti Club, directed by Japanese militarists, who were able to dictate even cabinet appointments.

Chang and Wu overthrew Tuan and the Anti Club. Chang, who had been a bandit leader, became the power in the north, making his headquarters at Mukden. Wu took the inspector generalship of the provinces of Hunan and Hubei and with them control of the entire Yangtze Valley. Soon the two began rivalry for control of the Peking government.

Chang was able to oust President Hsu and Premier Liang, and he gave way to him. He now played with the Japanese and had some of the Anti Club members restored. Chang is accused of being pro-Japanese, but he pretends he is wholly for China.

Chang's ascendancy in Peking caused Wu to take measures to oust the Hsu government. He has pre-

Capital Thinks Standard Oil Company May Have Pipe Laid in Deal

WASHINGTON, May 3.—State Department and Administration officials today read with interest an exclusive Genoa despatch regarding the British oil deal with Russia.

Officials have known for some time that the Standard Oil Company was seeking new agreements in Russia and the Near East.

The participation of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, in which the British Government has a large interest, is considered highly important in that it seems to take the deal at least partly outside the realm of purely private undertakings.

In declining the invitation to send an official delegation to the Genoa Conference the United States went definitely on record as opposed to the creation of any international oil commercial monopolies for the exploitation of Russia's natural resources.

British interests for months past have been seeking control of the oil district around Baku and Standard Oil has not been idle.

Only recently A. C. Bedford conferred a published report that an agreement between Standard Oil and the Anglo-Persian Company for joint development in Persia had been virtually reached. He later went to London to clear up one or two unfinished details.

The possibility that Standard Oil may have some interest in the new deal between the British syndicate and the Soviet authorities was pointed out today.

Virginia Moonshine Deadly, Says Fulwiler

"Dry" Director Tells of Fatalities and Blindness From Illicit Drink—Enforcement Supported.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Robert A. Fulwiler, prohibition director for Virginia, reported to Commissioner Haynes today increased co-operation on the part of county and municipal authorities in Virginia.

For instance, at a recent meeting of the council of Martinsville, a committee was authorized to purchase an automobile of suitable power and speed for apprehending whiskey runners passing through Martinsville.

Director Fulwiler sends a warning against Virginia moonshine. "It is impossible," he reports, "to say how many persons negotiated purchases with bootleggers and have gone home and died. Consideration is being given to the suggestion that persons engaged in selling such liquor be arrested and held for murder. Many deaths are known to have been due to such whiskey, with many permanently made blind by the liquor."

Director Fulwiler says enforcement is receiving splendid support from women, they having proved of great assistance to agents. "It seems that they have some secret way of getting valuable information concerning rum running and the manufacture of liquor," he said.

For the first quarter of the year, 1932, Virginia enforcement agents seized 2,308 gallons of liquor, arrested 43 men and captured several teams of horses and about 100 automobiles.

THIS FLORIDA FATHER KNOWS

What Children Often Need—Eighteen Happy Children in a Healthy Black-Draught Family

BOLTS, Fla.—Near here is the plantation homestead of Santa Rosa County's well known family—the Taylors. To a visitor at the Taylor home, the Rev. W. N. Taylor authorized publication of the following statement:

"I am comparatively a young man; am healthy and can do a lot of work. I am the father of eighteen living children. Our last children were twins. I lost one grown daughter from lung trouble, but certainly can say I have a healthy lot of children, about as healthy as you will find anywhere, and I feel I have been blessed."

"Our home remedy is Thedford's Black-Draught. I don't know when the time was that I haven't used it. I have used it ever since I was married. I know. When the little ones are feverish, or have colds, we make a tea from Black-Draught and give them. When they are older, they take the powder dry. I know it is fine for headaches, sour stomach, indigestion and other liver troubles."

"I don't know just what we would have done without Black-Draught. It has done wonders in our family towards keeping them well and healthy. Thanks to a good remedy."

"I am a preacher, farmer and merchant. It takes all to take care of us."

(In an article about the Taylor children printed some time ago in many newspapers, Mr. Taylor was quoted as saying that "they had always been happy, had always continued in good health, and hope to so continue.") At all druggists.—adv.

No Games On Yesterday By Piedmont Clubs

Rain at all three of the cities in which baseball games were scheduled for yesterday afternoon caused a postponement of all of the contests. Danville was to have met Raleigh for the second game of the series but the grounds were in too bad a condition to play, and also a steady downpour of rain was falling. Such was the case in Greensboro where Durham was scheduled to play and at Winston-Salem, who was to meet the unbeaten Furniture Makers.

Today Danville will journey to Winston-Salem where they will play that team, weather permitting. Durham goes to High Point and Greensboro to Raleigh.

MANY PRAY FOR RICHARD CROKER

NEW YORK, May 4.—Bent and wrinkled women and men—250 of them and most of them poor—knelt in prayer today for Richard Croker, who died recently in Ireland. Most of them at times in their long lives had been helped in an hour of need by the hard but often warm hearted man who ruled over Tammany Hall for many a year.

It was these poor people—not politicians, nor those of wealth and power—who prayed for the repose of Croker's soul at a requiem mass in the church of St. Ignatius Loyola. There was no eulogy, no music. It was simply a low mass. After the celebrant had left the altar the old women and men gathered outside and spoke tenderly of "Mr. Croker."

One old man, who said Croker had gotten him a job when his family was about to starve, pulled from his pocket a card to show he had arranged for the big chief to be perpetually remembered in mass for the dead.

HEDGECOCK STILL UNABLE TO RAISE BOND REQUIRED

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 4.—Basil H. Hedgecock, cashier of the Home Baking Company of High Point, N. C., under arrest charged with misappropriation of over $67,000 of the bank's funds, had not been able at a late hour tonight to raise the $45,000 bond required of him.

He spent the day in conference with counsel, automobile riding with his family, and a police officer, and in jail. Hedgecock again made arrangements to spend tonight in a hotel in custody of an officer. The bond required of Hedgecock was raised this morning from $25,000 to $45,000. The accused banker will be given a hearing before Judge Walter Royall in High Point Saturday morning.

FIELDING BUNTS YORKE'S PUZZLE

Inability to field bunts is a handicap Jim Yorke must overcome if he ever expects to shine as a big leaguer. Yorke, who goes to Los Angeles from the Chicago Cubs as part payment for outfielder Arnold Stutz, has plenty of stuff, but lacks experience.

Yorke's greatest trouble last year was his fielding rather than pitching. A big husky fellow, he found it difficult to field bunts. Opposing teams soon discovered his weakness and made it as uncomfortable as possible for him.

The Cubs doubt retain a string on Yorke. It is believed a season or two in the minors will overcome his weakness. If he learns to handle bunts he is sure of a major league berth.

STATE RESTS AGAIN IN THE TRIAL OF BURCH

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 4.—The prosecution of the trial of Arthur C. Burch, charged with the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, rested its case late today after calling Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain co-defendant to reply to the prosecution attorney who asked her name when advised not to testify until the indictment against her had been dismissed. Mrs. Obenchain was excused.

After the State had rested, the defense called two witnesses on minor points and adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

Mrs. Obenchain, whose trial ended in a jury disagreement, was escorted to court by a jail matron. She smiled and bowed to several persons she recognized but did not look at Burch, though the latter kept his eye on her most of the time she was in the room.

Music Festival Has A Brilliant Artistic Close in Grand Opera

Danville's first music festival came to a close last night, the climax in point of attractiveness being the singing by four brilliant artists with the accompaniment by the Danville Choral Society and a brilliant orchestra by the famous Philadelphia Festival Orchestra of Maschagn's familiar but beautiful opera, "The Barber of Seville," before an audience estimated at two thousand.

Artistically, practically all accord that the festival was a brilliant success, but financially it must be confessed it failed in point of patronage to measure up to the expectations of the guarantors. While exact figures are not yet available, it is conceded that the patronage failed to attain the guarantee which had to be underwritten before the contracts were signed.

In the opera last night, the five leading roles were taken by the four artists who were engaged as the nucleus of the festival attraction, and the rest were filled by the Danville Choral Society of perhaps a hundred carefully trained voices. These choruses were full, sonorous and spirited and were highly creditable exhibitions of ensemble singing on a large scale. Sustained and guided by the brilliant orchestration, the vocal contribution by the chorus rose to the occasion admirably and demonstrated the ability of a city like Danville to provide such choral background for great individual singers.

Maschagn's masterpiece is a brilliant composition and affords ample scope for some fine dramatic work. While the superb tenor of Altohouse naturally evoked enthusiasm and the plaudits of the really critical, Miss Marshall who sang the role of "Santuzza" made a profound impression on her hearers and rather overshadowed Miss Squires, dramatic contralto, who sang the role of "Lola" and "Lucia." Fred Patton, an American baritone-bass, shared the honors of the evening with Mr. Altohouse, his magnificent rich baritone and his convincing dramatic powers arousing enthusiastic appreciation.

The opera chosen for the occasion is one replete with human passions and calling for the most intense emotion at times. Naturally it afforded scope for the display of the highest powers of the singer, the more so as the opera was not presented in costume nor enacted, but had to be interpreted purely by the voice of the human voice with the aid of the superb orchestration. With four such finished singers, all experienced in musical interpretation, the rendition was a musical masterpiece and appealed to the emotions of the audience which were profoundly moved. Mr. Altohouse was given an especially enthusiastic and spontaneous ovation in his final solo, and Misses Marshall and Squires had to acknowledge and bow their appreciation of the persistent applause they evoked.

Preceding the opera, the audience was given a magnificent rendition of the familiar overture from "Tannhauser," a fine specimen of the sonorous melody and the power of Wagner. German music appears to have completely outlived any prejudice to things German which marked the war period.

The cast of characters for the opera was as follows:
Santuzza, a village girl, soprano—Olive Marshall; Lola, wife of Alfio, contralto—Marjorie Squires; Turiddu, a young soldier, tenor—Fred Patton; Alfio, a teamster, baritone—Fred Patton; Lucia, mother of Turiddu, contralto—Marjorie Squires. Chorus of Peasants and Villagers—Choral Society.

Benjamin S. Bates, director of the Danville Choral Society, conducted the opera last night and did it brilliantly.

Afternoon Matinee
After a four day of rain and then more rain that threatened to diminish the attendance at the matinee of the Music Festival yesterday afternoon dark clouds turned into what but lowly ones that parted and let the sun shine through just before the scheduled hour for the program to begin. Thus encouraged, many people came who might have stayed at home had the weather not undergone such sudden and joyous transformation.

It was estimated that the attendance last night was as large if not larger than the one at the initial performance Wednesday night.

And the weather and the music seemed to parallel. First the numbers were dark and sad and lacrymose, shading off in to dreamy, elusive passages that were relieved here and there with highlights, colorful interludes growing more lively and more joyful until, toward the end, the orchestration was a veritable diapason of exultation.

Whether encouraged by the sun or by the orchestra, English sparrows, that have made the nooks and crannies of the roof a nesting place, came in to cacophony with the melodies of the orchestra, throughout the program; and the best efforts of the director toward harmony was wasted on them. Their monotonous one-note chirp never ceased.

Every member of the program was a study in instrumentation and orchestration; the esprit de corps, the meticulous harmony maintained was marvelous, always spontaneous and never forced.

The first number of the program was an overture, Sakuntala by Rimsky-Korsakov, a sad and dreamy motif running through it, with here and there a happier strain by the way of contrast and the end a more lively note that bespoke a happy denouement.

A selection from Schubert, "L'Inferno," followed, a melody of uncertainties and contrasts, first lively and fast, then slow and slow, and the motif an elusive theme that catches and holds the hearer.

The number that appeared most to the audience was Chabrier's "Scherzo Rhapsody," which carries a rhythmic melody and motif of dreamy "Tropia" where the hearer becomes oblivious to mere sound and lost in the pleasant vagaries of his own imagination.

The appearance of Miss Marjorie Squires was the cue for a generous round of applause; and the initial handclapping was as nothing as compared to the ovation she received when the singer finished the aria "Tschalkowski's" "Adieu Forests from 'Jeanne d'Arc.' Miss Squires has a remarkably rich soprano and the number she sang gave opportunity for full display of the range of her voice. At the close the handclapping was persistent and after she had responded several times by appearing and bowing she finally consented to sing again. This number was light but catchy and the singer was again accorded a generous ovation.

The last number of the program was the "Ride of the Valkyries" by Wagner, a most difficult orchestral composition, but which was handled with skill by the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Warns Against Present Liquor

Moonshine Now Far Below Standard and Many Who Drink It Are Dying Or Becoming Blind.

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of The Danville Bee.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—There is anything but cheerful news for the Virginia violators of the Eighteenth amendment in reports recently made to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes by State Director Fulwiler.

The Virginia Director asserts that the "moonshine" is far below the high standard of the olden days, that the county and municipal authorities are co-operating with the dry officials, and that the enforcement agents are receiving splendid assistance from the women.

He relates that at a recent meeting of the city council of Martinsville, a committee was authorized to purchase an automobile of suitable power and speed for apprehending whiskey runners passing through the town.

It is impossible to say how many persons negotiated purchases with bootleggers and have gone home and died. "Is the cheerful warning sent to Commissioner Haynes by Fulwiler about the grade of moonshine in the State. "Consideration is being given to the suggestion that persons engaged in selling such liquor be arrested and held for murder. Many deaths are known to have been due to such whiskey, with many made permanently blind by the liquor."

The women have proved of great assistance to the agent in arresting law violators. Fulwiler says, "It seems that they have some secret way of getting valuable information concerning rum-running and the manufacture of liquor," he asserts.

Schoolfield Negro Caught With Booze Near Martinsville

(Special to The Bee.)

MARTINSVILLE, May 5.—A negro giving his name as Summers, and who said that he was from Schoolfield, was this morning tried and fined $250 on a charge of violating the Mapp act. Summers was captured on Wednesday with about 30 gallons of Henry county moonshine whiskey, by Officers H. J. Meade and J. C. Minors. The Ford car in which the negro and the whiskey were found, was confiscated. Summers was unable to raise the amount of the fine and was again taken to jail.

WEIRD TALE OF MEETING ON EASTERN EXPORTER REVEALED

NORFOLK, May 5.—When the American steamer Eastern Exporter arrived in Philadelphia late Tuesday night from Constantinople, it had aboard a weird tale of mutiny and efforts on behalf of part of her crew to seize the vessel and hoist the red flag, according to the reports circulated in this city yesterday. And besides that feature of her voyage, two Norfolk men, Captain Charles Moller and Chief Engineer William Kirby, had met with an experience worthy of the old days of piracy.

As the story was told in Norfolk yesterday by various interested parties, the Eastern Exporter was on her homeward voyage from a Russian port. She had discharged grain for the starving population of that country and was making for home when she passed through the straits at the Turkish seaport. It was there that eight members of the crew undertook to throw Captain Moller from the ship and seize the vessel. However, an American destroyer was standing not so very far away, and rushed to the assistance of the steamer's officers upon call. Six of the crew were placed under arrest and left in Constantinople, while two remaining forsigners were placed in irons and brought back to America.

Shipping Board officials said yesterday that they had received no official communication regarding the trouble and for that reason were not in position to discuss it. It was said, however, that some trouble had been experienced at the Turkish port, the nature of which was unknown.

Just what did happen appeared to be a speculation in Norfolk yesterday. Everyone knew a little about the case, but were not in a position to state authoritatively what actually happened.

Where the Eastern Exporter will go from Philadelphia is not known at present, but Captain Moller and Chief Kirby are expected to visit their respective homes in the city within a few days.

Other Norfolk men were also in the crew, it is understood.

—Mrs. J. E. Walker, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Howard McClintic, of Pittsburgh, Pa., are visiting Mrs. John James at her residence on Green street.

Senate Slow In Acting On Tariff Clauses

WASHINGTON, May 4.—An estimate that at the present rate the pending tariff bill would be passed on September 29, 1946 was given to the Senate today by Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, in charge of the measure, who said the estimate had been prepared by an expert who based his calculation on the fact that just two of the 2,000 odd committee amendments to the measure have been acted on in thirteen days.

"I think that after listening to the debate today," said Senator McCumber, "we will have to wait thirty or forty years more to that estimate." Asserting that the tariff bill had not been discussed for one fifth of the time it had been before the Senate, Senator McCumber declared: "We have all gone on on extraneous matters."

"Unless we get down to the bill itself, I'll tell you what will happen. You will get tired of hearing your own voices and before you have considered one third of the bill you will be ready to swallow all of it."

Senator McCumber said night sessions might become necessary but he thought if the senate would get down to work the measure could be passed in a reasonable time.

The Senate voted today on the second of the committee amendments, rejecting 26 to 47, an amendment by Senator Jones, Democrat, New Mexico, to reduce consumption duty on borax acid from one and one-half cents a pound to three quarters if one cent a pound. The committee rate then was approved.

WOMEN'S CLUBS ADOPT PLATFORM

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 4.—The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs annual session here, continued at high speed today and moved through a full day of business. Outstanding in the events of the day was the adoption of the legislative platform for the coming year. As reported by Miss Gertrude Weil, of Goldsboro, the resolutions range from strictly North Carolina affairs all the way to the legislative platform for the coming year. As reported by Miss Gertrude Weil, of Goldsboro, the resolutions range from strictly North Carolina affairs all the way to the legislative platform for the coming year.

Among the planks for the raising the age of consent to 16 years, the establishment of the Australian ballot; providing that parents have equal guardianship over their children; adoption of declaratory act by the legislature that women have the right to serve as jurors; a strong resolution of the disqualification against a woman's testifying in her own behalf on an indictment for abduction or seduction unless her testimony is corroborated in some other witness. State aid for mothers and a form of teachers' pension and stricter enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Mrs. T. W. Bickett, widow of the former Governor of North Carolina, spoke this afternoon in the interest of "better babies." She told of the educational work of the bureau of maternity and infant hygiene, of which she is at the head in this state, and said it was the purpose of the bureau to have a trained public nurse in every county in the state. Mrs. Bickett said that out of 33,000 babies born in North Carolina in 1920, 9,000 were born dead or died before they reached the age of one year and the health of the mother was permanently injured because of ignorance or lack of care. It is in this condition that Mrs. Bickett wishes to better. The convention will close tomorrow.

HEAR PETITION TODAY

Macon, Ga., May 4.—A petition for injunction filed by the Union Savings Bank and Trust Company of Cincinnati, Ohio to prevent the sale on May 9 of the Hawkinsville and Florida Southern railway property, will be heard tomorrow morning before Judge H. A. Mathews in superior court.

NINE DEAD IN STORM

AUSTIN, Texas, May 4.—Nine dead, 35 injured, two probably fatally and property damage estimated at $400,000 was the toll of death and destruction in the wake of a tornado which late today swept through the west side of Austin and on out of the city to Oak Hill, 8 miles southwest, according to a check of the situation late tonight.

In case you are hesitating whether to wear them just as short or to make them longer, you are glad to know there is a sure way out. Use the new side drapes. They are the great Parisian compromise. You may have your skirts short and your drapes long or reverse the order. It doesn't matter.

MISS SARAH KNOX IS FOUND GUILTY AND GIVEN 20 YEARS

MONTROSS, Va., May 4.—Miss Sarah E. Knox was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to 20 years in prison by the jury in its verdict at 2 o'clock this evening. Miss Knox, former nurse has been on trial since last Tuesday for the killing of Mrs. Roger D. Eastlake, whose husband was acquitted last December of the murder. Watt T. Mayo, commonwealth's attorney of Westmoreland county, concluded the argument for the State at 6 o'clock. Judge Chinn then adjourned court to allow the jury time to eat dinner before resuming their secret discussions. The jury retired at 7 o'clock, returning the verdict in one hour and 23 minutes.

The jury stipulated that the verdict should carry a term of 20 years imprisonment in the State penitentiary. The court room was crowded as Miss Knox was brought from the jail to face the jury. The purse stood erect as the sentence was announced and displayed no emotion.

She turned to her sister, Mrs. W. L. Salter, of Ocean City, N. J., however, and said a few words. Judge Chinn then formally sentenced her and said he thought the jury had been "most lenient" with her. No steps were taken by defense counsel toward filing any appeal, and Judge Chinn adjourned court, while Miss Knox was taken back to the jail. It is expected she will be taken to Richmond to begin serving sentence.

The case of Miss Sarah E. Knox, Baltimore nurse charged with the murder of Mrs. Margaret L. Eastlake at Colonial Beach last September, was given to the jury early tonight. Immediate deliberation was not begun by the jurors, however, as Judge Chinn permitted them first to go to dinner.

During the arguments, which were closed by Commonwealth's Attorney Mayo, both Miss Knox and Roger D. Eastlake, husband of the slain woman were denounced by the opposing attorneys. Mr. Mayo was merciless in his references to the nurse's life from the time she first met Eastlake until the morning the mutilated body of Mrs. Eastlake was found in a pool of blood on the kitchen floor of her home. He declared that "if ever a murdered was caught red-handed," it was the defendant and asked the jury as "fair-minded citizens of Virginia" to render a verdict in the first degree. There was "motive, means and opportunity beyond and beyond," he told the jury.

Fred W. Coleman of Fredericksburg, for the defense, bitterly assailed Eastlake and declared the crime had been committed by no other than him. His reference to the naval petty officers as "the most despicable type of humanity" caused the crowd that jammed the court room to break into a cheer and Judge Chinn ordered the sheriff to clear the room if there was a reception.

Harry M. Smith, Jr., of Richmond, chief counsel for Miss Knox, closed for the defense. He stressed what he termed the good the accused woman had done for suffering humanity all her life and in contract featured Eastlake as the personification of selfishness. He emphasized Eastlake's admission on the stand that he "had frequently lied" to the nurse, had owed her large sums of money and had tried to "cover up his double life by joining the church." Mr. Smith acknowledged that "a dangerous chain of circumstances connects the defendant with the crime, but I also know that there lives one, ten times more familiar with its commitment" than the nurse.

Under agreement, Judge Chinn permitted Dr. Charles H. Burton, a chemist of Washington, to testify at the opening of court concerning blood-stains he had found on the hat said to have been picked up near the body of Mrs. Eastlake.

NEW OF CHATHAM

CHATHAM, May 4.—The Board of County Supervisors in monthly meeting this week appropriated $475 to maintain the seven road machines of the county for the month of May. $1981.81 was paid the three banks of this place interest on borrowed money. Chairman J. J. Whitehead reported the sale of county bonds for the sum of $100,000 and distributed the following Chatham Savings Bank $50,000, Planters Savings Bank $12,000, First National Bank $3100, H. G. Bennett, county treasurer $125,000, Roanoke Sales Corp., $423, lumber $160, paint $217. A large number of small claims were allowed.

Mrs. Fannie Eastley, of near this place and Mr. Harry D. Hedrick were married in Danville Tuesday afternoon returning to her home where they will reside.

The Chatham Library Association had its annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon, being the most successful in its history. Sixty-one subscribers are enrolled and 92 new books were added during the past year. The number of volumes in the library is 825. Valuable contributions in both books and money have been made during the year by individuals and organizations. Punch and cookies were served at the conclusion of the business of the afternoon.

The May Fete on the campus of the Chatham Episcopal Institute on Monday was attended by a very large crowd and the program well executed and enjoyed by all. The site was ideal for the occasion and the work of the characters gave evidence of much and careful training. The May pole was one of the most attractive features of the afternoon and the beautiful costumes of those taking part made a delightful scene. From now until finals the students will be busy preparing for final examinations.

Most of the week has been rainy and little farm work could be done. The farmers have been moving fertilizer and the rust on Monday was unusual. The wheat crop at this time is the most promising in many years and the weather has been just the kind to make the crop good.

"THAT MAN CAILLAUX" PLANS TO MAKE A COMEBACK!

PARIS, May 4.—"That man Caillaux" has written a book in which he says: "Out of the war there arose in France, in Europe, a base plutocracy made up of profiteers in metallurgy, in coal, in oil, in food, in ships. . . ."

"Profiteers in their mad desire to secure the same kind of gains in peace times that they did in war, are knocking down the trees to gather the fruit. . . ."

"In France there is always these days the same policy, the policy of a plutocracy seated upon a lie. . . ."

"Governing those selected to govern, the captains of industry, the profiteers, the wolves or the jackals who returned from the fields of battle with their money-pots wet with blood, are the masters of Europe. . . ."

"Europe is on the eve of belonging to an anarchic feudal class. The chiefs of the huge trusts are dukes and counts."

Caillaux Unique
There is no parallel to Joseph Caillaux in American public life. Many things have happened to him, any one of which would forever have killed his political chances in America. But in France he is the man with nine lives. Sooner or later he always comes back.

A master of finance, he has four times been minister of finance of his country and in 1911-12 was premier. In 1914 when he was finance minister, the newspaper "Figaro" attacked him savagely, printing some letters of his wife, Mme. Caillaux, killed the editor and was acquitted.

During the war he was arrested and thrown into prison on a charge of having relations with the enemy. He was tried by the French Senate in 1920 and found guilty of a minor charge.

For this he was sentenced to three years imprisonment, and loss of civil rights for ten years. As he had been in jail for more than two years awaiting trial, his prison sentence was dropped.

Caillaux's friends said the charges were faked and that the reactionary and capitalistic crowd who control the French Parliament wanted to break him.

Planning Comeback
Caillaux is living in retirement in the south of France awaiting the next election.

If a radical government comes into power, Caillaux is sure to have his civil rights restored and to be called back to public office.

In the meantime, in his book "Whither Goes France? Whither Goes Europe?" he has whipped his enemies with whips of scorpions. He paints a black picture of France and one just as dark of Europe, as a whole. Of France he says its financial position is almost hopeless.

In Europe generally, with the exception of England, he sees a policy of madness.

In order to strangle the trust builders and speculators, Caillaux proposes that a common European debt be created and a common European money issued.

He visualizes parliamentary assemblies as now, but confining their job only to political rights. There would also be a new organization made up of employers, workmen and consumers which would control all economic matters.

Party Continues
Inspection Trip
In Flood Area

NATCHEZ, Miss., May 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Members of the congressional delegation inspecting conditions in the lower Mississippi valley viewed flooded lowlands along a hundred mile stretch from Vicksburg to Natchez from the decks of the steamer Mississippi today, viewed protective measures taken to hold the flood in check at one north of Lake Providence, La., through which the flood is sweeping over land.

Baton Rouge, the next stop planned in the journey which will end in New Orleans Saturday, will be reached shortly after noon tomorrow.

The Weccama crevasse now a half mile gap in the embankment, gave the congressmen the most impressive demonstration thus far of the might of the swollen waterway. Racing over the remnants of the tumbled earthworks, the water, running in a current that is rapidly tearing away the few remaining frame structures, was spicing fast over sections of Comacoma and Catahoula parishes with the head of the back water now in the lower section of Texas.

Owing to the current with which the flood is sweeping into the rent in the levee, the Mississippi did not undertake to pass near shore beyond the break and the delegation, to get a close view, hiked a distance of a quarter of a mile over the embankment to the end of the standing earthworks.

At one inspection of a three-quarter mile stretch of sand-bagged levee in which thirteen sloughs have occurred was made in motor launches. Before leaving the boat at Natchez for a trip over the city, a delegation of Louisiana citizens explained at an informal hearing the needs of this section in the matter of levee protection.

LIQUOR CANNOT BE SOLD ON AMERICAN VESSELS
HOUSTON, Texas, May 4.—American ships are legally American and liquor for beverage purposes cannot be sold on them, Federal Judge Hutcheson declared today in confiscating 254 bottles of liquor seized on the steamship Mount Evans, a United States shipping board vessel, at Galveston.

SPANISH GREEN OLIVES AND SHRIMPS IN JELLY

The hostess who delights in setting a novel dish before her guests, or in placing it on the table for the Sunday dinner "en famille," is constantly on the lookout for new fish favorites. Here is one that is not only delicious, but very attractive as well:

Canned shrimps will answer for this dish, or the fresh may be used if obtainable. Prepare the shrimps by picking the shells from them, and cut them in large pieces. Dissolve one and a half table-spoons of gelatine in one-fourth cup of cold water, then add a pint of clear consommé or chicken broth, and bring to the boiling point. Season highly and strain through a cloth. Chill almost to the point of congealing, then pour into a wet mold, and set in a cold place to stiffen. Arrange the shrimps in layers alternating with layers of sliced green olives in the mold, adding the jelly from time to time and permitting it to harden before placing any more of the shrimps or olives. When the mold is full, set it away to chill for several hours. Then turn out on a platter and border with nasturtium leaves or with cream.
